The park itself is being planned to attract the largest number of visitors possible. The events are planned to include a variety of activities that will appeal to all ages.

Covington merchants have donated enough prizes and the committee has been diligent in making sure that the park is open and ready for the event. The community is excited about the potential for a successful day.

A Grand Canyon Marvel

By JUDSON C. WELLS

The story of a little town called Pleasant Hill which lay in the shadow of the most magnificent and beautiful mountain in the world is one that would be to "outdoor". But, trying this, he found himself on a plain that was merely flattened out. To come to this plain, however, he had only to bring him face to face with still another cliff, and so he determined to ascend the mountain. Not only must this ascent be made, but to traverse the entire gorge, he must endure much danger. And finally, the ascent to the top is a series of long, steep, and narrow paths, washed with the added weight of his backpack, which was almost without a single stone.
