HYDRAULIC MINING IS BEING REVIVED

Project to Wash Out $500,000,000 in Gold Dust

Sacramento, Calif.—A feasibility study, planned for 42 days, is about to be released to indicate the possibility of reversing the hydraulic mining which has been in operation in California for many years. The study is being conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, and it is estimated that the project could cost $500,000,000.

The wall of sand-mass is to be made of gold dust, and the project is to be financed by a subscription of $500,000,000. The study is expected to be completed in about 42 days, and the results will be released to the public.

The Philadelphia of Our Ancestors

Scenery at Night

Each year on May 25, a reproduction of Philadelphia's famous streetcar is driven through the streets of the city. It is one of the outstanding features of the Sesquicentennial International Exposition now being held in Philadelphia to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Every building has been built to actual size and in actual architectural detail. The furnishings of each building are exact reproductions of those used in the Revolutionary days. Many of the pieces on display are the originals and today are worth thousands of dollars because of their historic value. The Exposition continues until December 1.

The Dayton, Ohio herald comment, that the duty of a jury to the taxpayers, in spite of old and new arguments for or against a base for a new weaving room, right or wrong, is a part of the city government's concern.

Not a theory, but a fact:

Commenting on the political atmosphere of the town and how the issue of "help" the farmers or to pass laws to lift them up, the San Francisco Chronicle says:

"The farmer, more interested at the moment in the growing of the crop than in the fate of one of them, is finally the victim of political bankruptcy and self-styled politicians. Industry declines to be taken in by such tactics any more, and if the farmer wants a real helping hand, he must take his power and shape his own future.

Breaking down the effort at the expense of American farmers, the writer says, destroys the best interest of the farmers. The farmer, all industry, including agriculture, needs a hand from the government which gives our workers and farmers an even break and that is what the socialists stand for.

"But we are more interested less interesting than "receiving funds" and other words "lost relief."" The efforts of the farmers are more involved than the ordinary man can believe.

What gas will do:

Illustrating possibilities of the gas industry is the complete operation of the Kentucky Fried Chicken and Coke Co., which produces 1,000 tons of liquid gas per day at a cost of $1.00 per ton. The company, with four plants and 100 employees, takes in 40 loads of coal per day, and has a plant for producing 100 tons of gas per day, sufficient to produce 1,000 tons of liquid gas.

The colors of a chicken's head will vary from white to yellow, depending on the breed of the chicken. This is due to the production of melanin, a pigment found in the chicken's skin.

The eggs of Leghorn and Ancona breeds have a higher albumen content than those of other breeds, which makes them more resistant to cold and heat. The albumen content also affects the weight of the eggs, with Leghorn eggs weighing approximately 1.5 ounces.

The color of chicken eggs is variable, ranging from white to brown. This variation is due to the production of melanin, a pigment found in the chicken's skin.

The egg production of Leghorn hens is significantly greater than that of other breeds, with Leghorns laying an average of 300 eggs per year.

In summary, the color of chicken eggs is influenced by the production of melanin, a pigment found in the chicken's skin.
