ROBBERY ATTEMPTED; BANDIT KILLED

Finding of Ornstein's Trunk in New York Creates Sensation

Radio Operator's Trunk Found in New York

Contains Woman's Wearing Apparel and Silk Evangelistic Robe.

Had Been Shipped to Many Cities by the Company of Mr. W. Ornstein.

(R. H. E. DEBROUSSE)

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—The sensation at this hotel was temporarily increased about noon today when Wilson Opson, Paulette, and W. E. McVicar, of the American Railway Express Company, discovered a trunk belonging to one B. Ornstein which had been shipped to Los Angeles under the name of Mrs. W. W. McVicar.

Ornstein, former radio operator at Los Angeles, is a man who has been the companion of Mrs. McVicar during the past few months, and while his followers thought him dead, his trunk was found in a hotel room.

In the trunk, according to the report of the police, was a quantity of money in various denominations, and a number of valuable articles, including a large quantity of clothing, silks, and other articles of apparel.

The trunk was opened, and the contents were examined by the police, who found a quantity of money and jewelry, as well as a number of clothing articles.

The trunk was then sealed, and the contents were taken to the police station for safekeeping.

The trunk contained a large amount of money, and the police are now investigating the matter to determine the identity of the owner.

The story of a two-fisted cowpuncher who took a fling at the jazz life and ended up in the open spaces. The human story of a woman who would not cut off an ear for a friend. "Romances of the West," with solo and string saxophones are featured. A gripping tale of Cupid and cattle-rustlers. "He's a picture you'll remember—enough for a lifetime video!" A western romance with jazz variations. A two-tallied tale of the region where men are born to the saddle.
