Indicted For First Degree Murder

(L. N. S. Dispatch)

Canton, O., Nov. 4.—After loitering along and taking it easy for three and a half months since the assassination of Don R. Meltzer, vice fighting Canton publisher, justice this afternoon stepped on the gas with the serving of a first-degree-murder indictment on Pat McDermott, "key figure" in the mystery.

Prosecutor C. B. McClintock asked Judge Edwin Diehl that Pat be arraigned at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and that the judge then also set "an early date for a speedy trial."

McDermott, in a low voice, asked the court to appoint an attorney for him as he claimed to be destitute. He expressed a preference for Ed L. Mills, Canton attorney, who is defending Louis Maser and Ben Radner, the two other indicted in connection with the murder.

"Pat McDermott has signed his own death warrant," the same person said. "He refused to talk. We did not care for the information he may have given against himself; we have an air-tight case against him evidence against Louis Maser and Ben Radner."

"McDermott has received the office" not to talk and all the pleading of his brothers was rendered null by these "graveyard" messages.

Voicing the belief that the state has a stronger case against McDermott than against the other two defendants, McClintock asked the court to place the trial of the "key figure" ahead of Maser's, which was to have opened November 8; and that the case against Maser be second and Radner's third.

The prosecutor also asked that the trial be held as soon as a special venire of 75 prospective jurors be selected. Trial of McDermott will be opened within three weeks, he predicted. The sheriff will be instructed tomorrow to set about drawing the new panel, it was learned.

McClintock, in addressing the judge, emphasized the point that the state expects to proceed with full speed ahead against the three indicted men and there will be no delays.

Upon arrival here tomorrow of Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, who has been ill, investigation of another figure in the case will be started, with the view of securing a first degree murder indictment against Morris Nadel, Cleveland bootlegger, McClintock told International News Service.

REFORMATORY GUARD KILLED

Manassas, O., Nov. 4.—William Fox, 24, a Russian Jew, committed to the Ohio state reformatory on a charge of auto stealing and but recently released on parole murdered Urban Wilford, 74 year old reformatory guard, Tuesday morning. Reformatory Superintendent T. C. Jenkins asserted this morning.

Wilford died yesterday afternoon from bullet wounds in the head, inflicted when a man drove up to the west gate of the reformatory at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and without warning, fired three times at the aged gateman.

The county commissioners today offered a $500 reward for the capture and delivery of Fox, against whom an affidavit charging first degree murder was filed by Superintendent Jenkins.

Prosecutor Becker and the reformitory officials refuse to discuss the details concerning the shooting, whether it was prompted by revenge for some act of the guard during Fox's recent confinement or whether it was to be a wholesale delivery of inmates from the institution. It is believed, however, that there was a well-laid plan for the escape of a number of inmates and that while Fox carried out his part of the scheme, it failed of its purpose because the men who were to escape were still locked up instead of being at work, due to many of the guards being off duty to vote.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strickling of Piqua were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Drees.

Hope Given up For Miners As Entrance Fills To Surface.

(L. N. S. Dispatch)

Inspiring, Mich. Nov. 4.—Seven of the 53 miners who were drowned by a cave-in of watery quicksand in the Barnes-Hack iron mines here yesterday had been accounted for early today.

Their crushed and badly mangled bodies were recovered in No. 6 level of the North Lake mine, two miles from the Barnes-Hack shaft.

The disaster was one of the most unusual in the history of mining. A huge pocket of quicksand broke through the mine shaft wall without warning and poured down upon the workers, caught like rats in a trap on the third and last levels of the mines 1,600 feet below the surface.

The catastrophe occurred just before the noon lunch hour. Thirty minutes more and the men would have been safe on the surface.

No additional bodies had been recovered as the result of shoring a new opening through the cave-dug shaft where 53 lives were lost in a cave-in of watery quicksand, got under way late this afternoon.

Although members of the families still entertained hope some of the men might be rescued alive, mine experts declared the giant mass of water and mud would effectively block up all possible air vents and any possible survivors would be suffocated before help could arrive.

MEANS ANOTHER TWO YEARS OF HARD WORK

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—With about 20 counties still incomplete but all lacking only a few precincts each and with but one contest still close enough to make a hinge in the result that of Lieutenant governor, the 1926 election was almost a memory today.

Earl D. Bloom, Democrat of Bowling Green, was leading James O. Mills, Columbus, the Republican candidate, by slightly less than 5000 votes when the tabulations began today. It was the general consensus of opinion there were not enough districts unreported to cut this lead down, enough to permit Mills to again take the lead.

Every other office was decided: Governor Donahy issued a brief statement this morning, declaring the election means another two years of hard work.

Latest tabulations today showed the following figures:

For governor—Donahy, 691,304; Cooper, 674,917.
Lieutenant governor—Bloom, 630, 113; Mills 627,354.
Secretary of state, Brown, 695,007; Young 695,254.
State treasurer—Buckley, 658,897; Pattison 620,391.
Attorney general, Turner 628,872; Zimmerman, 580,828.
United States senator, Willis 707, 909; Pomerene 620,004.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—With only two precincts in Pike missing, each with less than 75 votes Earl D. Bloom was declared the winner for lieutenant governor at noon today. He was leading James O. Mills by 7771 votes. Piqua were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Drees.

EINSTEIN THEORY MOSTLY
NONSENSE DECLARES
SAN FRANCISCO
ASTRONOMER

San Francisco. — A new flame up in the Einstein theory controversy has just struck San Francisco.

It was started by a mere layman this time, L. A. Redman, San Francisco attorney and student of astronomy and science.

The Einstein theory according to Redman is just a lot of "Amazing and incredible nonsense."

This and a few other remarks of Mr. Einstein's pet hypothesis are contained in Mr. Redman's work, "The Einstein Delusion and Other Essays," just off the press.

Redman, a boyhood companion and intimate friend of the late Prof. John J. Montgomery, famed as one of the nation's greatest scientists, has spent years in study of scientific subjects, and his work on the Einstein theory is the fruit of years of study and research on the subject.

For some year past he has been in communication with Professor Chas. Lane Poor of Columbia University, a distinguished scholar, who engaged on a work attacking the Einstein theory from a mathematical standpoint.

Redman's attack is along physico-philical lines.

He does not mince words, neither does he show much respect for some of the world's noted scientists. He picks errors and challenges Einstein and his supporters to answer his attacks.

"Einstein says that according to the 'general' theory of 'relativity' the deflection of a ray of starlight grazing the sun's edge is 'half of app,'" writes Redman. "Half of the deflection he says is produced by the Newtonian field of attraction of the sun and the other half by the geometrical modification (curvature) of space caused by the sun."

Redman's reply to his contention is "This is absurd and ridiculous. By no means can intangible space be curved. You can no more curve space than you can twist time."

Attacking the theory from another angle, Redman says:

"The 'relativity' theory asserts that there is no distinction between two bodies moving at that same velocity in the same direction; that motion in the latter case does not exist except 'relatively' to other bodies."

"The fallacy of this contention is obvious. The fact is overlooked that moving bodies at rest do not possess."

"The energy is the same whether the bodies are moving in the same direction or in opposite directions. The fact that the existence of the energy is not disclosed by experiment of observation is immaterial. It cannot be proved by observation that energy cannot be created."

"This is a fundamental truth which experiment and observation presuppose."

"But it is not a numerical truth; mathematics is not concerned with it. But mathematical deductions drawn from primes in conflict with it are necessarily erroneous."
