The alleged 'are you game' is not an un-silencing sense-organ there wouldn't be so many live posts around.

The work has happened. We saw a H. F. youngsters lift his helium balloon torsor across a wet splot.

No wonder some men feel like water, some others slide faster than a slippery splot with fright.

The burning question of the hour "Who will get up and start the train?"

An automobile manufacturer says many people can afford two cars and that the lot could afford one too. "If this thing goes on, we shall be selling them by the dozens."

Instead of meeting his 18-year-old son, that Ohio man should have gone to the auto factory and lunched. It could make money.

Some of these silver statistics for radio cases are as beautifully printed for sale as a Gimlet body to a famous's office.

Our Postal System

By Mrs. A. O. Groome

The postal office in my home town is the one agency of government with which every citizen comes in personal contact. As we have come to look upon our mail box as an extension of our own homes, it is only natural that our correspondence should be safely and speedily delivered.

In the city, where the mails are delivered to many homes, the postman is a familiar figure. In rural districts, the mail is delivered by the rural carrier. In some communities, the rural carrier makes two or more deliveries in a day.

One of the most important services provided by the postal system is the delivery of newspapers and magazines. These publications are delivered to homes and businesses throughout the country.

Take no chances with your Home Butchered Meats

Two men, using the same tools, can cut the same meat, one will pack it better than the other. How can you know which is the better? How can you know how much better? The difference lies in the skill and experience of the butcher. It takes years of training to become a master butcher. And it takes years of practice to perfect his craft.

Our rural carriers are not only delivering mail, but they are also delivering the news. They are the eyes and ears of the postal system, and they are the people who make sure that every piece of mail reaches its destination.

New LIma Beans, 2lbs.

Prepared by the Rural Delivery Service. It was established in 1893. Only four routes were laid out in the very beginning, and in those days no one could have imagined the growth that the Rural Delivery Service has already achieved. Today, there are over 40,000 Rural Delivery routes in the United States.

The Rural Delivery Service is a part of the postal system. It is one of the most important services provided by the postal system. It is the only route that delivers mail to homes and businesses throughout the country.
