SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

Columbus—Never in the history of this great Buckeye state has there been so much political talk two years before another election as there is right now. There isn’t a seat of publicity, a single candidate for any state office two years hence but in fact a fair chance for victory every one. Ohio hasn’t the place it occupied a few years ago in National events, and efforts to stage a come-back are being made this year. Indianapolis in detail and with a heavy artillery necessary to put there, is present, yet the plans are being fully sketched with some of the big leaders of the state taking a prominent if not an official hand. Democrats are not so much as we Republicans who want to stage a comeback take the claim of everything that goes with it, with an eye on national offices as most in the shadow of the White House. If it is not to be White House, Ohio Republicans are to be found who will see President Coolidge that he saw enough so that the White House would be open, and a couple of announcements could be made. They have to wait the decision of the new coroner which is in very good shape. There is a new understanding or feeling that Coolidge likes his job and will ask another term, and might disrupt some of the plans now being hatched in Ohio. But watch—watch the move of battle, which will be visible from almost every press in so much as they can.

Announcements, made by the Ohio Valley Retail Furniture association, that the 1937 convention and market of the organization, which includes dealers in furniture from Chicago, St. Louis, and New York, the convention has been held to convene and market in Chicago, due to the lack of hotel facilities in Columbus. The dates fixed for the convention and market are March 29-30. Convention displays, which will include the products of approximately 200 furniture manufacturers, will occupy four floors of the Neil Hotel. An attendance of more than 2000 furniture retailers from the four states is expected. The Ohio Valley Retail Furniture Association is the largest territorial unit of the National Retail Furniture Association.

When Princess Cavallaro visits Columbus last week the maid the round of the shops to the visit to the cabin in which her grandfather, General U. S. Grant was born. The cabin is located at the state fair grounds acreage. Efforts are to be made again when the present assembly convenes to have the cabin returned to the original site of Point Pleasant by residents of Brown and Marshall counties. The Company has expressed that the entire cabin should be returned to its original place providing it was given the same raw attention that it received at the state fair grounds. Agreement in a moves that more people get to see it at the fair grounds than they possibly could at Point Pleasant, but against that to avoid the location where General Grant was born, would make a visit more impressive open the sides than by being 126 miles away it is today.

Ohio must provide more room for its criminal population, and while the disposal of the present Ohio penitentiary have been under discussion several times, there is no intention on the part of the state to dispose of this property. The General Assembly will be more than a half million raised in the old prison of the state is required in the new cell block, and there is no intention of using the old cell block.
