CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Christmas Pageant at the Christian Church which was given last week was "Silent Night." It was the story of a boy who was losing with a little brother and sister. The children had a very poor home and had largely been orphaned. The parents of the neighbor children passed the older boy to the church and taught him to sing. On Christmas night at the great waduful offerings were brought to the Lord by all the people, when the offering was made that should be completed to the Lord the great-choir of the cathedral with a gift. Everybody planned to bring people of wealth and fame and the small gift was expected to appear with a gift. Everybody planned to bring to the great-choir that upon the back of a sheep bedridden old woman who was seemingly suffering from cold and hunger and the tears of the boys refused to leave her to go to the great so that she was ministered to, her

What Editors Say

TELEPHONE FAILING

"Telephonists are often blamed by patrons," says an Illini editor, "but the operator is an expert and is more apt to make errors correctly than the individual who grasps up the instrument carelessly and jolts instead of speaking softly, distinctly, and carefully. The strongest recommendation might be, 'remember thine own shortcomings.'"

There is more truth than poetry in this testimonial to the long-suffering enforcing girl. Despite her occasional errors or slowness she is, indeed, usually an 'expert' in line. She is often greatly by observing and imitating her careful service. Her direction, her beauty and attention to business and her ability to get the most effective use out of the telephone is such that no operator can communicate over a wire more clearly in a whisper than some subscribers.

When all is said and done, the most admirable characteristic of the telephone is the swift and accurate direction with which it is served in hearing, or the conversation. With stocks it is treated as intelligently and courteously as the telephone and is entirely the same with any other conversational telephone.—Milwaukee Daily News.

The Race Progress

If we have a race of women with the telephone operator it is after- blamed by patrons," says an Illini editor, "but the operator is an expert and is more apt to make errors correctly than the individual who grasps up the instrument carelessly and jolts instead of speaking softly, distinctly, and carefully. The strongest recommendation might be, 'remember thine own shortcomings.'"
