SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

By C. H. Haddox,

Columbus, O. Jan. 3.—Efforts to solve the financial troubles of the Buckeye state government will feature the activities of the 87th regular biennial session of the Ohio legislature which convened here today.

Continuation of the deadlock, which marked the legislative session here two years ago, between Governor V. Donahy and the Republican majority in the senate over the question of senatorial confirmation of the governor's selections for membership on the state utilities commission is scheduled as an added feature.

Besides giving consideration to a multitude of measured dealing with local issues in various parts of the state, the legislature will wrestle with proposed statutory enactments designed to solve vexing taxation problems; to provide for an extensive program of highway improvement amendment of primary and election laws and changes in the state's dry laws.

As has been the case for a number of sessions, the new legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. There are 138 Republicans, 35 senators and 103 house members, and 35 Democrats two of which are in the senate and 33 in the house.

Although the prevailing sentiment among the leaders appears to favor a short, snappy legislative session, prediction was frequently made in the legislative chambers today that it will be an extended affair, and that the solons will not finish their work before April.

Groundwork for major activities by the legislators will be found in bills which will embody recommendations of the joint legislative committees on taxation and economy, highways, and elections which since the last regular legislative session, gave extended and comprehensive study to the many problems relating to these phases of state government.

One of the most pressing duties confronting the legislators here is that of finding some way to avoid a deficit in his state's general revenue fund. A number of times during recent months, this fund in the state treasury, was completely wiped out.

For the purpose of preventing the state from being plunged into involuntary bankruptcy, some legislators want the governor and the legislative leaders to get together on a legislative program providing for revision of taxes, which will provide for increased revenues and for economies in operating expenses of state governmental departments.

Both administration and anti-administration forces agree that the state will incur a deficit of approximately $10,000,000 within the next two years, unless expenditures are curbed, tax laws revised.

Some Republican legislators concur in the recommendation, credited to Governor Donahy, that the legislature raise the corporation franchise tax rate to what it was before the legislators reduced it two years ago. The revision, it is estimated, reduced the state's income about $4,000,000.

Abolition of the uniform tax rule in Ohio and enactment of measures providing for new forms of indirect taxation, it is said will be urged by some of the legislators as a means of curing the state's financial ills. A bill is said to be introduced, which will be indicted, will be offered providing for a tax levy of three cents per gallon on all fuel used for motor vehicles in Ohio. The present tax is two cents per gallon.

Bills, embodying recommendations of the joint legislative committee on highways, providing for an annual expenditure of $25,000,000 for construction and maintenance of highways; for creation of a state highway board and separation of the state highway department of public works and for reclassification of the state's roads into state, county and township systems, are scheduled to be introduced.

Pointing out that, under existing state laws, the state highway director must, also, be state superintendent of public works, chief highway engineer and state building commissioner, a number of legislators are urging that a law be enacted providing for appointment of a state highway commissioner by a state highway board, the commissioner serving for not less than four years.

Dealing with the problem of financing highways, members of the joint highway committee recommend appropriation of $8,000,000 for new construction in addition to $2,750,000 federal aid money; $16,000,000 for repairs, widening and reconstruction of bridges and highways on the state highway system, and $1,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings on this system.

A bitter fight is expected to develop this legislative session when a number of legislators seek enactments of measures intended to modify provisions of the state's "dry" acts.

State Senator George H. Bender, Cleveland, Republican, has announced his intention of offering a bill, providing for limitation of the powers of justices of the peace to their own towns. Legislators who are ardent supporters of views expressed by officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League are expected to oppose vigorously the proposed Bender bill as well as other attempts to amend Ohio's dry laws. League officials have registered vigorous disapproval of contemplated measures which, they believe, will "weaken" the laws enforcement statutes.

Other strenuous contests this session are anticipated if legislators make good their threats to offer bills permitting Bible-reading in the public schools, and repealing the Pence law which permits utility companies to (Continued on last page.)

Telephone Building
Is Given to Public

"Dedicated to the public service." A tablet was unveiled recently in the newly constructed Ohio Bell Telephone Company building in Canton. It was a civic occasion, city officials and prominent residents of Canton being present. E. F. Carper, president of the Ohio Bell, made the principal address and in it he declared that his company was turning the building over to Canton and its citizens—that it was in truth "dedicated to public service." Mayor M. S. Swarts of Canton accepted the building and said he was sure that The Ohio Bell Telephone Company would live up to its pledge and render Canton the finest service within its power.

LEARN HOW TO TELEPHONE
When an Ohio child reaches the age of six, he or she knows how to use the telephone—at least knows how to take the receiver from the hook, call central and answer incoming calls. Over in England it is different and just recently a prominent member of the British Parliament urged that weekly lessons be given in the public schools on the proper use of the telephone.

Youngstown—If you build a nice roset, you'll get some chickens. This seems to be the theory of the Youngstown city council in authorizing the purchase of an "air port" and providing for an "airport superintendent" to guard the field, despite the fact that not a single airplane in commercial work, has ever stopped here.

Litpa, Ohio—A genuine Stradivarius violin, one of the most valuable musical instruments in the world has come into the possession of George Carlton. Lima Photographer: although it is to be kept in the Bank of England, at London.

The "Strad" was bequeathed to Carlton by an uncle, Wiseman Carlton, of Manchester, who recently died at the age of 84. Only a few Stradivarius violins remain in the world today and they are highly prized as relics.

Carlton says the instrument will remain in the bank vault where it is now kept since, "England has been its home and I believe that my uncle would prefer that it be kept there."

They've found a skull three quarters of an inch thick but the story doesn't tell what college professor was so tactless as to report it.

Twain needs of the modern city: Parking space for motor cars and subterranean burrows for pedestrians.

You hear a lot of talk about self-made men, but all men are that.

The adjective in "easy payments" doesn't refer to the collector's job either.

"Every time I kissed my wife she made me kiss her mother," complains a Chicago husband. Go on gentle reader, and finish the song to suit yourself.

What we need now is somebody who can swim the English Channel under water.

DOINGS AT COLUMBUS—CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE

Collect increased rates, under bond, 120 days after their new schedules have been filed with the state utilities commission and to continue collecting the boosted rates pending determination of a permanent rate by the commission.

Of the fight over the Bible-reading bill, vetoed by Governor Donahey, was one of the most spectacular contests during the last session of the Ohio legislature.

Some legislators do not favor outright repeal of the Pence act. They indicate, however, their willingness to support a bill fixing a certain time limit within which the state utilities commission must make final disposition of the proposal to change rates. Utility companies are expected to put up a big fight against all attempts to prohibit them from collecting increased rates under bond.

Recommendations that the session be short and that few laws be enacted are expected to be made by Governor Donahey in his message which he will submit to the legislature next week. Among other things, the governor's message, it is understood, will deal with taxation penal institutions and favor amending the Deeney corporation franchise act so as to increase the revenue from foreign and domestic corporations.

Bills providing for the care of the state's feeble-minded dependents, bettering conditions in state institutions and changing the school system will be included in the avalanche of measures to be dumped into the legislative hopper this winter.
