SCIENTISTS UNCOVER Buried Cities of Armageddon

Excavations Reveal Civilizations of Ancient Palestine's Conquerors—Bible Describes Scene as Mankind's Last Battlefield.

By J. M. Brody

The excavations at Tell el-Far'ah have yielded remarkable results. The site, which is identified with ancient Armageddon, has been extensively explored, revealing layers of civilization dating back thousands of years. The latest excavation, conducted by Dr. James M. Brody, has uncovered evidence of ancient civilizations that were contemporaneous with the events described in the Bible.

Dr. Brody's team has discovered artifacts that suggest the presence of advanced cultures in the region. The site, located near the modern city of Nazareth, has been the subject of controversy among archaeologists and historians. Some believe that the site is the legendary Armageddon, where the final battle of good and evil will take place.

The findings have sparked a renewed interest in the biblical narratives, raising questions about the accuracy and reliability of the text. Dr. Brody suggests that the site may provide new insights into the history of the region and the development of early civilizations.

The excavations continue, and further discoveries are expected to shed light on the ancient world and the biblical accounts. The results will be published in a forthcoming book, "Armageddon: The Forgotten Cities."
