COAL-PIET WORKERS HELD IN SLAVERY

Scottish Miners Long the Property of Owners.

At the beginning of the seventeenth century, Scottish miners were held as property by their owners. In 1600, the miners, who did not have the right to vote or participate in public affairs, were considered property by their masters. By 1620, the situation had not changed.

In those days, the owners, both men and women, were bought and sold like livestock. The price of a miner was determined by the quality of his work and his health. Many miners were bought and sold several times during their lifetime.

For the miners, the situation was hopeless. They had no rights and no protection. They were at the mercy of their owners, who treated them as property. The miners lived in fear and despondency, knowing that their owners could do anything to them without fear of punishment.

The situation improved in the eighteenth century, but it was still not until the Industrial Revolution that the miners were able to gain any real rights. Today, Scottish miners are free to live and work as they choose.
PASTORS' CHILDREN TO HONOR PARENTS

Memorial Takes Form of Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Chicago.—Silver keys to golden memorial. In these words epitomizes a national movement, the headquarters of which is Chicago, and its objectives, the National Memorial for the Children of Tuberculosis. Two large buildings will be the architectural manifestation of the movement, the girls' building, and the boys' building, and the most striking feature of the new institution is the fact that the majority of the children of the National Memorial will live outside of Chicago.

The "golden memorials" are those that are located in the principal cities of the United States, and in the smaller cities, the heart-felt groups who are helping to extend the building scheme by giving of their time and money.

The "silver keys" are the children of the National Memorial, and the dedication ceremony, which is to take place on April 15, is expected to be attended by thousands of children.

That national memorial to be the Methodist Ministers' Memorial Sanatorium at Colorado Springs, Colo., is in process as the principal unit of the National Methodist Episcopal Church Sanatorium—tuberculosis project enjoining aid of a million dollars in buildings and equipment.

"We say," says Rev. J. W. Irwin, D. D., executive secretary of the association, "we will collect $250,000 and will use the same and daughters of Methodist ministers so opportunity not only to honor our fathers and mothers, but also to assist in making the world more than a million persons with this disease. The service will be open and will be provided with food and rest in those who are unable to pay the cost of their trip for health. Doctor Irwin added that probably no movement in the history of Methodism ever has struck such a popular appeal and that the need for the service is widespread. In his own words, the services have been followed by the names and addresses of 100,000 sons and daughters of Methodist ministers.

"Our greatest concern now," he continued, "is to provide the most effective and convenient way of reaching the public to serve in public places." The service will be provided with food and rest in those who are unable to pay the cost of their trip for health.
