Shanghai Falls in City—Errors in Native Part of City (By Alfred Deane)

The foreign population of Shanghai was kept within the international concessions, and even within the foreign districts there has been no disorder. But with the fall of the Chinese concession, and with the falling in the French concession, anarchy has spread rapidly, and there is a general feeling that the government is about to retreat, to which there is no real objection in the city.

Michigan Legislature Will Vote On Restoration of Death Penalty

By E. A. Wiesenberg

Detroit—Michigan, the first state in the nation to abolish capital punishment, may restore the death penalty.

The legislature will be called into special session to consider the question of abolishing the death penalty. The move is being made in response to a national outcry for the restoration of the death penalty in states that have abolished it.

Two years ago, in its last session, the state house of representatives defeated the death penalty, with a vote of 49-1 in favor. This time, the majority is predicted to be in favor of restoring the death penalty.

Assailants of the move argue that it will lead to a restoration of the death penalty, which they believe is a necessary deterrence to violent crime.

Police are heavily engaged in battle with the bystanders, and many people are killed. Members of the Detroit police department were recently placed on a 24-hour alert and ordered to "shoot to kill." Ignored are the words of others and attempts to close out major crimes, the police are told.

The question of the death penalty is one of the most difficult and controversial issues in the state. The legislature and the governor have been asked to make a decision on the matter, but the decision has not been made.

The death penalty is considered by many to be a cruel and unusual punishment. Opponents argue that it is a violation of the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution, which prohibits cruel and unusual punishments.

The other side of the debate argues that the death penalty is necessary to deter violent crime and to protect society from those who are deemed to be a threat.

Arms of Telephone Operator — Travel Four Miles Each Day

Recently an interesting newspaper reporter in Colorado boasted of having traveled four miles each day, making an average of 120 miles every day, or 360 miles every year. Each time she made a trip up her arm, she traveled an average of one-third of a mile. When she made her trips down the arm, she traveled another third. It is two yards for each up and two yards for each down.

The arm's length is therefore, four miles a day—and 1,728 miles in a mile, which indicates that the arm of the average telephone operator travels 4 miles each day.

Not That Ambitious

This story is told of an indubitable businessman who bought a farm down one of the small towns of Ohio. A few miles of Indians along the river, where he could hunt and fish and spend his captivity in the open on his own farm. Battle had been received as a canteen,

"Now I want all those buildings before you," he said, and was being instructed in the dole he was appointed to do.

But I am sure that I know what will be the outcome of the campaign if it is continued in the same spirit."
