"DEAD MAN" STILL ALIVE BUT SUFFERS RELEASE

(Late Bulletin by I. N. S.)

Albert Trick, 22, Evanston's "Living dead man" almost died in a rescue this morning, and only a hurried resort to oxygen kept the spark of life alive.

An item carrying the details of his misfortune is carried on page three today. Latest bulletins show that Trick himself was bending every effort today to conserve his strength, the corps of physicians in attendance have warned him of the necessity of keeping up his vitality because of the tremendous drain caused by the ceaseless pushing in of his chest.

Yesterday he tried to talk a little but today he is keeping quiet, laying for the most part with his eyes turned toward the ceiling. The only break in the monotony came when he asked for his brother Carl.

"It is impossible to forecast the future," said Dr. Reed. "One might say that if artificial respiration is kept up and if the boy's heart does not give way, there is fair chance of recovery."

"On the other hand, if the paralysis does not retire there is nothing we can do. The men, of course, will keep up respiration in the boy just as long as the least spark of life remains. But it can't be kept up forever."

Literally it is a question whether the paralysis of Trick's vitality holds out the longest, and no one can say to just what lengths any given person's vitality may be stretched.

Trick has been living by artificial respiration administered by his 50 friends, for the last 100 hours.

Columbus, O.—The most complete set of the old McGuffey readers in the United States is now in the Archeological and Historical Museum at the Ohio State University, here.

The set numbers 126 different readers. Several numbers were printed in 1836. The books were recently presented to the Ohio State University by the Columbus McGuffey Society which has spent several years in collecting old-time readers.

Included in the collection are five readers donated by Henry Ford, not only auto manufacturer, who is also a collector of the famous elementary school books. Ford is said to have paid $2,000 for an old and almost forgotten copy of the McGuffey Second Reader copyrighted in 1852, to George Heinzelman, of Ross County, Ohio. A reprint of that volume is among the collections presented to the Ohio Museum.

Heinzelman is a reputed collector of the books and started to gather the various copies of the series more than 37 years ago. Ford claims to have a set of McGuffey readers that he used in his early school days.

It is not exactly known according to the Columbus McGuffey Society, just how many readers were written and copyrighted.

DEAD MAN IS STILL ALIVE AT EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

Strange Case of Man Who Died Saturday, But is Still Alive Today.

Evanston, Ill.—The crisis in the strange case of Albert Trick, the "living dead man", propped up in a bed at St. Francis Hospital here, is expected within the next 12 hours it was announced today.

Technically, from the standpoint of Medical Science, Trick "died" last Sunday morning, when he ceased to breathe after being stricken with motor paralysis. The stroke affected the diaphragm and chest, so that he could not breathe.

Trick, who is only 22 years old was reclaimed to life by the quick action of a physician who induced artificial respiration by depressing the patient's sides, forcing air into his lungs. Since that time the youth has been kept alive by fifty-six muscular young men who for more than 90 hours have by this means kept the spark of life alive in their lungs.

Four famous specialists and a group of trained nurses, representing all the skill of medical science, stand by, baffled and helpless, while this untiring crew of unskilled men inspired by the desire to save a human life go about their task with mechanical precision.

Trick was stricken after he had two teeth extracted. It is believed an infection caused the paralysis. Physicians believe that if Trick can be kept alive until this infection runs its course, he will survive. Dr. R. C. Brown, one of the specialists in attendance, said the infection should run its course in 10 days. That should bring Trick's case to a crisis some time today.

There is a man on either side of the bed. The patient is propped up at an angle of 45 degrees. In perfect rhythm the men press the patient's sides, bellows fashion, forcing the life-giving air in and out of the lungs. They work for 15 minutes and then two other men take their places. No, a single beat is missed. Should the cease for a minute the patient would die.

The physicians direct their labors and check on the patient's condition. There is little else they can do.

Trick's life depends upon the brains of his 56 friends rather than the skill and intelligence of the specialists.

The physicians are hoping that the paralysis will in time disappear and that normal functioning of the respiratory organs may be resumed. Indications last night were that this was coming about. Trick has been so paralyzed that he could not swallow or talk. Shortly before midnight he was able to swallow a little liquid nourishment and whisper a few words to the loyal friends who are fighting to bring him back to health.

But this morning his condition was not so favorable. He seemed to be growing weaker. Oxygen tanks were employed to aid the work of respiration. His temperature this morning was 101½ and his pulse 126. The patient complained of severe pains in his legs.

The Grosjean Trio

POPULAR NOVELTY TRIO—The Grosjean Marimba-Xylophone Trio is a popular novelty musical company featuring on its widely varied program the music of the marimba-xylophone. This melodious instrument unites the best qualities of the marimba and the xylophone. The marimba has been in use for centuries among the Indian tribes of Central America and among the natives of South Africa. The xylophone is a well-known favorite with American audiences. The marimba-xylophone achieves a tonal quality of remarkable depth and resonance.

Both solo and ensemble numbers are rendered on this instrument by the members of the Trio, each of whom is an expert marimba-xylophone player. In addition, the company entertainingly presents a program rich in instrumental trios, duets and solos, ranging from the popular to the classical and utilizing a wide variety of instruments.

Miss Floss Grosjean, feature artist of the company, is a well-known impersonative entertainer. She wins her audiences with her gay and sunny smile and her wholesome enjoyment of the humorous things of life. Riley poems, as interpreted by her, are always very popular.

In addition to her character sketches, Miss Grosjean is a clever banjoist, saxophone artist and pianist. She also gives notable ventriloquist numbers. Harry L. Jensen is a popular Lyceum entertainer and a valued member of this company. His saxophone numbers are especially pleasing.

Completing the ensemble of the company is Miss Armina Wilson who, in addition to her proficiency on the marimba-xylophone, contributes notably to the program with her playing of the clarinet and piano.

On Building

He that alters an old house is tied as a translator to the original, and is confined to the fancy of the first builder.
